It is learned that the appropriations committee of the general assembly has decided to report favorably on the resolution allowing the Norwich state hospital the sum of $254,000 for new buildings and equipment. This is stated to be $20,000 more than they at first recommended. This committee as well as the committee on humane institutions, were here and looked over the institution and discussed the plans of the trustees for additions to the hospital. The figures were given out by the chairman of the appropriations committee on Friday and Monday if necessary. There was a session on Friday owing to the adjournment Tuesday owing to the adjournment Tuesday owing to the attendance was small, only a few from the plant of the state being in their seats. The house leader said he was pleased to see that the member from Norwich, Representative Tibbits, was in attendance, as it was at his request the recess was taken on Tuesday. In spite of the small attendance much business was done.

Dr. and Mrs. S. C. Graves, the former a son of Rev. Samuel Graves, a form paster of the Central Baptist church his city, have just returned to their home in Grand Rapids, Mich., after a New England tour during which they risited Norwich while it was preparing visited Norwich while it was preparing for the 250th anniversary celebration. Speaking of their return the Grand Rapids Herald says:

Dr. and Mrs. S. C. Graves returned a few days since from a tour through New England, during which they visited at the old home of the former Norwich, Conn., known throughout the east as "The Rose of New England." The city is preparing to celebrate on Norwich, Conn., known throughout the east as "The Rose of New England." The city is preparing to celebrate on July 5 and 6 the 250th anniversary of the town and the 125th anniversary of its incorporation as a city. Beside these figures the recent observance of Founders' day in Grand Rapids and the celebration of the city's eighty-second anniversary pale into ansignificance.

Dr. Graves moved to Norwich with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Samuel Graves, when but one year old. His early manhood was passed there. On his recent visit he found a few friends of his youth still living in the town, some of them ranking among the city's foremost business men. Charles Trankla of the Boston store was formerly a resident of Norwich.

"New England is the old maids' paradise," said Dr. Graves. "While in the city I called on a number of ladies whom I had known as a little boy and who had belonged to my father's church. They are old maids, some of them beautiful ladies of the true aristocratic class, maintaining in true New England style the halls of their fathers.

eratic class, maintaining in true New ngland style the halls of their fathers England style the halls of their fathers. In fact, one could almost imagine himself transported to the shores of old England, which the country much resembles. Settled for two and a half centuries, the rawness to which we in the west are accustomed has disappeared and the old homesteads bear many of the characteristics of merry England."

Dr. Graves came to Grand Rapids with his parents when but 12 years old. His father, Rev. Samuel Graves, was a Baptist minister, and it was through his efforts that the two warring factions of the Baptist church of Grand Rapids were united. Rev. Mr. Graves was instrumental in the founding of the Fountain street Baptist church, and one of the handsome memorial windows of the present structure represents him in the act of baptizing a child in the waters of the Grand, with the church in the background.
